COMMUNICATION

The Department of Communication seeks to provide students with a broad-based understanding of the processes of human communication and the importance of these communication processes in our society while serving and encouraging those students with professional aspirations to become ethical, articulate, creative, and innovative leaders in the field of communication.

Students major in communication as preparation for careers in business, law, teaching, and ministry, among others. Communication is the only way to exercise leadership, and oral communication is our main method for communicating with one another. Thus, the communication major proves useful to students with a wide array of career aspirations.

The communication specialist major combines courses in communication and film and digital media. This program of study blends a leadership/management/organizational communication focus with the development of expertise in digital media production. Like the communication major, it is appropriate for students with a wide array of career aspirations but is most appropriate for those intending to take advantage of communication expertise in a corporate career track.

Communication also offers students the opportunity to pursue a range of theoretical and practical courses in corporate communication, rhetoric and public discourse, and conflict management.

Various communication activities offer laboratory settings in which a student’s work is aided, directed, and evaluated by faculty specialists in a particular area of communication. These activities include:

a. The Glenn R. Capp Debate Forum, one of the nation’s distinguished debate programs, offers students experiences in intramural and intercollegiate debate and forensic events. The Capp Forum also sponsors argumentation seminars, public discussion forums, a summer debate institute for high school students, and a workshop for high school teachers.

b. Internship programs in communication provide students with real-world experience in their chosen field.

c. Students have the opportunity to study and work with professional international consultants in the Baylor in England-Kensington summer program.
